Tuesday Reading Group

Suggestions for a different day and/or time may help this group survive. New members are always welcome.

September 17 Satire Imitates Life

Mad Magazine emerged as part of the counter-cultural response to our material prosperity in the post-war era. Although satirical and self-degrading, it gave voice to those who were embracing emerging new values which would later become a large part of mainstream society.

September 24 The Circle of Food Justice

Nicole Celaya will present. We will be examining the inequities in our local food system and the ways that FoodLink and other food banks are shifting the paradigm from emergency food assistance to grass-roots, community led systemic solutions to hunger. We will also look at the ways that food justice intersects with other social justice issues and movements. Celaya is a professor of English and works with FoodLink of Tulare.

As a Unitarian Universalist congregation, we affirm and promote:

- The inherent worth and dignity of every person;
- Justice, equity and compassion in human relations;
- Acceptance of one another and encouragement to spiritual growth in our congregations;
- A free and responsible search for truth and meaning;
- The right of conscience and the use of the democratic process within our congregations and in society at large;
- The goal of world community with peace, liberty, and justice for all;
- Respect for the interdependent web of all existence of which we are a part.
